Boston, Mass. (May 10, 2006) – Humanitarians and local Boston celebrities will gather at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel and Towers to mark Triangle's ongoing commitment to improving the lives of people with disabilities. Triangle's 35th Annual Celebration, emceed by Amy Scott, host of VH1 Classic, will take place Sunday, May 21, and begin with a reception at 5:30 p.m. .

"Non-profit is a status, not an objective," says Michael Rodrigues, Triangle's CEO. "Our mission is to transform the lives of people with disabilities in Massachusetts through our national award-winning programs and services. Through our innovative business model that offers hands-on experience and job training, I see lives touched every day within these walls. We're pleased to be honoring those that have made a great contribution to our efforts in the past year."

This year Triangle will honor Daniel Pallotta, Malden native and founder of Pallotta Teamworks and now principal of springboard, as Humanitarian of the Year. TJX Companies will be recognized with Triangle's Community Leadership award and Verizon Wireless will receive the Spirit of Giving Award. Triangle will also honor several outstanding participants for their success.

For tickets and information, call 781.322.0400 x221 or visit www.triangle-inc.org. Tickets are $150 per person and sponsorship opportunities are available.

Triangle, Inc.

Triangle is a private, nonprofit organization that helps people with disabilities lead more independent, dignified, and self-sufficient lives. Triangle accomplishes this by providing highly individualized employment, community living, health, and social services to more than 1,000 people from over 100 communities every year. Triangle was founded in 1971 by several community leaders from Malden, Medford, and Everett; hence the "triangle". Their began in a church basement with five participants. Today, Triangle occupies a 100,000-square-foot Malden headquarters, and manages three community employment centers and 10 community residences. For more information visit www.triangle-inc.org.
