

Triangle, Inc. Welcomes New Board Members

Bringing Range of Diverse Skill Sets, Board Gears Up for FY 2020

At its first quarterly Board meeting of FY2020, Triangle, Inc. welcomed two new Directors and convened a Board of experts across employment, diversity and inclusion, public service, fiscal management, and human services as the organization prepares for another successful year of empowering people with disabilities and their families to live more independent, fulfilling lives.

“We’re thrilled to welcome our most engaged and experienced Board of Directors in our organization’s recent history in FY2020,” said Triangle CEO Coleman Nee. “The wide range of expertise that our Board members bring to the table is what will set us apart as we look ahead to a year that will bring both new challenges and opportunities for our organization to serve people with ability from across the Commonwealth. We’re grateful for their steadfast commitment to our organization and its mission.”

The two new Directors, Colleen Moran and Richard Curtis, join seven existing Directors: President Michael Moran of CFG Brokerage Network; Vice President Rachel Kaprielian of McDonald’s Corporation; Treasurer Robert Perry of Massachusetts College of Art and Design; Clerk Mark DeOliveira of The TJX Companies, Inc.; Director Jessica Black; Director Paul Donato, State Representative; and Director Mike McCurdy of Brookline Bancorp, Inc.

Colleen Moran brings over 25 years of experience in human resources in health care, high-tech manufacturing, and financial services to her current role as Director of Workforce Programs at Spaulding Rehabilitation Network (SRN). Her long-standing interest in advocating for employment for people with disabilities is evident through her participation on a variety of related boards, committees, and activities. Colleen leads several initiatives including Project SEARCH and Working Partners, a public/private partnership with the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission focused on increasing employment of people with disabilities in healthcare. She holds Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from Boston College and lives in Reading.

Richard Curtis has championed the development of numerous staffing initiatives through his relationship building, pipeline development, and strategic creativity in Massachusetts for over 20 years. In his most recent role as Vice President of Workforce Development at State Street Corporation, he managed over a dozen of State Street's workforce programs in the Boston area, including partnering with many disability organizations. In 2019, Richard received several awards in recognition of his work: the Francis X. McCarthy Diversity Inclusion Champion Award from Northeast Human Resources Association (NEHRA); MA State Senate and House Citation for Dedicated Service and Commitment for his partnership with the Mass. Commission for the Blind's summer intern program; and The Partnership Award from Work Without Limits, which is given annually to a professional leader who exemplifies the spirit of collaboration in advancing the employment of people with disabilities in Massachusetts. Richard also serves as a Director of the Board at the Carroll Center for the Blind and is a contributor on the advisory boards of the Private Industry Council and Work Without Limits, along with his membership on the Perkins Corporator Group and Massachusetts Advocacy for Children's B-Set Committee. Richard is a native New Englander residing in his childhood home in Marblehead with his wife, Amy.
